

History of Free Fire

Free Fire, officially called Garena Free Fire, is a popular online multiplayer battle royale game developed by 111 Dots studio and published by Garena in 2017. Similar to PUBG, the game places 50 players on an island where they must find weapons, survive, and fight until the last person or team remains. Designed to run smoothly on low-end mobile phone, Free Fire quickly became one of the most downloaded games worldwide, especially in countries like Indian and Brazil. It gained fame for its fast-paced matches, unique character abilities, and esports tournaments, making it one of the biggest names in the mobile gaming world.

It shows the global downloads of Free Fire from 2017 to 2025, capturing its explosive rise in popularity:

- 🚀 2017–2019: Rapid growth from 10M to 250M downloads.
- 🔥 2020–2021: Major surge during the mobile gaming boom, hitting 700M.
- 🎯 2022–2025: Steady climb to 950M, showing sustained global interest
